

“Quadrennial Energy Review” and the Energy Department.

The Department of Energy is looking to pump $220 million into a program to upgrade the American electric grid. Energy Secretary Ernest Moniz announced the push Thursday, saying the funding would help advance grid research at the agency's national laboratories and private-sector partners.

“This public-private partnership ... will help us further strengthen our ongoing efforts to improve our electrical infrastructure so that it is prepared to respond to the nation’s energy needs for decades to come,” Moniz said in a statement. Updating the energy grid has been a major priority for the Obama administration, and it was a key plank of the first “Quadrennial Energy Review” the Energy Department released in April.

At the time, the Obama administration said it would seek nearly $4 billion to modernize the electric grid. Republicans broadly agreed with many of the policy ideas presented in the energy policy review, and both chambers are pushing energy overhaul bills with grid modernization

<http://energy.gov/epsa/quadrennial-energy-review-qer>, www.energy.gov/epsa/downloads/quadrennial-energy-review-first...

On April 21, 2015, the Quadrennial Energy Review (QER) Task Force released its first installment of the Quadrennial Energy Review report entitled, “Energy ...

1. Quadrennial Energy Review - whitehouse.gov

<https://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2014/01/09/...>

The first Quadrennial Energy Review Report will serve as a roadmap to help address these challenges. ... An interagency Quadrennial Energy Review Task Force, ...

2. New Steps to Strengthen the Nation’s Energy Infrastructure ...

<https://www.whitehouse.gov/blog/2014/01/09/new-steps-strengthen...>

Today, President Obama signed a memorandum establishing the federal government’s first Quadrennial Energy Review (QER) process, fulfilling an important commitment ...

3. Federal Register | Quadrennial Energy Review: Notice of ...

<https://www.federalregister.gov/articles/2016/03/30/2016-07170/...>

Quadrennial Energy Review: Notice of Public Meeting. ... the Quadrennial Energy Review Task Force released its first Quadrennial Energy Review installment report ...

4. The Quadrennial Energy Review (QER) | Department of Energy

energy.gov/epsa/quadrennial-energy-review-qer

On January 9, 2014, President Obama issued a Presidential Memorandum directing the administration to conduct a Quadrennial Energy Review (QER). Informed by the June ..